THE MAN UP A TREE.

Captain Krowles, of the Royal engineering corps of the English army, is in the city. The captain denies that he is here in the capacity of a spy studying the strategic defenses at Fort Douglas, or that he is making an estimate of the fighting capacity of the United States army.

There was a rumor on the street yesterday afternoon that T. A. Davis, owner of the Times, had taken advantage of Pat Lannun's absence and was to begin the erection of a new bullding for the Times, on the lot cast of the Wasatch saloen. As this meant that the Times was to supercente the Morning Butcher, Colonel Nelson started out in person to run the rumor down. When Mr. Davis denied any such intention, Colonel Nelson wired the Washington and of the Marning Butcher as follows: "Rumor unfounded; will try to hold on thi you return." Put's reply was in cipher, and as near as it could be interpreted, read: "Rickett's rattled; hides high; round steak tough; congressmen come high."

There is more bad manners displayed by the boors who pretend to cut a figure in swelldom, to be seen on Main street, than in any civilized American city. The prac-

In any civilized American city. The practice of having one's boots cleaned on a public promenade is deucedly bad. Why not introduce wash basins and dressers, that a man may make his entire toilet out of doors! Barber chairs would not be near so objectionable and would not sir up any dust to soil the fine dresses of the lady promenaders. The boot black stands should be relegated out of sight, or at least forced to out-of-the-way places.
